Air charter Service: Hunters are responsible for part of the cost of getting into/out of the field from Kenai/Soldotna or Anchorage, this charge is in addition to hunt cost. ATO combines and schedules flights so that the hunter's do not incur all of the cost and try to keep charges to a minimum. In the majority of the camps our only mode of transportation is a Super Cub aircraft and if we have to call in an unscheduled Super Cub from 75+ miles out it can be costly. When a hunter wants to leave early or at an unscheduled time, they are responsible for the difference in travel costs.

Flight Costs are Per Person: Peninsula Brown Bear 1000.- Kodiak Brown Bear 800.- Moose (Unit 9) 1200.- Mountain Goat Backpack 750.- High Alpine Goat & Bear 2000.- Unit 16 Brown 800.- Unit 16 Black Bear 750. This payment can be made directly to the Air Charter or to ATO and we will pay them.

I have read and understand the Charter Flight information above and agree to its terms:

TERMS & CONDITIONS:

Booking fee is 50% of hunt cost and is due at time of booking (personal check, money order, or wire transfer welcome). Your final payment of is due 60 days prior to arrival in personal check, travelers' check or certified money, if you would like to pay in cash you may do so on arrival, just let us know. Trophy fees in cash, travelers' checks, or certified money are due before leaving the field. Wire transfers cannot be accepted once we are in the field full-time, as we have no way to verify the transfer.

Alaska Trophy Outfitters does not guarantee any hunts and is not responsible for fluctuations in animal populations, which may or may not affect hunter success. We are also not responsible for any problems created by weather, or any other unforeseeable events, such as delays, cancellations, expenses, etc. The most common issue is weather, being delayed prior to or after your hunt. You must understand that almost every camp we have is accessible via plane only, and most of the time that plane is a single seat Super Cub. When weather is bad or even marginal, they cannot fly us into/out of camp. If your hunt is delayed due to weather (i.e. you are stuck in town for 2 days of your 10-day hunt, you will only be hunting 8 days), there is no refund and ATO Inc. is not responsible for costs incurred. The same goes for coming out of the field late.

We highly recommend trip insurance since all monies paid from ATO are not recoverable. This includes but is not limited to guides, packers, food, gear, permits, etc. The hunt cost cannot be refunded, and the hunter is at risk of losing their hunt under extreme circumstances. Though we obviously don't foresee nor want this to happen, however if it does the trip insurance would be an invaluable investment. There are multiple companies that offer Trip Insurance, but we've found Ripcord to be the best 415-481-0600 or www.ripcordrescuetravelinsurance.com

All trophies, capes, hides, skulls, antlers and meat, etc., will be shipped to the client, tannery or the client's taxidermist, whichever the client chooses. All items will be shipped collect at the client's expense and risk, including but not limited to: crating, shipping, expediting & trophy preparation.

I have read and understand the terms of weather, animal guarantee or unforeseeable events as well as the advice to get trip insurance and agree to its terms:

Hunter Signature:_____ Date:_____

There will be no illegal hunting of any kind, either hunters or guides will be reported to Fish and Game Wildlife Protection. We highly recommend reading the Alaska Hunting Regulations prior to your hunt. These regulations are published on the Internet at (<http://www.wildlife.alaska.gov/regulations/huntregs.cfm>), available by mail (call ADF&G at 907-465-4100), and carried by your guide.

The most obvious and important regulations are the ones prohibiting same day airborne hunting, radio communication for hunting, wasting of meat, or shooting illegal animals such as undersized moose or sow bears with cubs.

Because each Alaskan Registered or Master Guide is entitled to hunt only 3 relatively small guide use areas per year Alaska Trophy Outfitters employs several such guides to cover a larger and more diverse territory. As a result, someone other than the person with whom you booked your hunt may sign your State hunt record.

Hunts start and end in the field and hunters are responsible for airfare between the field, Kenai, and/or Anchorage. Hunters are solely responsible for trophies after they leave the field. Schedule changes in charter flights may include an additional fee.

Cancellations:

Booking fees are a commitment to the hunt, both on the part of the outfitter and the hunter. They are not refundable but are transferable unless it is a permit drawing hunt. If we need to try and fill a spot last minute, many times it must be discounted dramatically and ATO is not liable for any compensation in price difference.
